

The image is a technical line drawing of an engine component, specifically a crank angle sensor connector. It shows a complex assembly of parts including a sensor housing, a connector, and various mounting brackets. A pointer line indicates the specific connector being referred to in the text. The drawing is a black and white line art style.

Crank angle sensor connector

AK601292AB